Survivors Staircase Moved to New Home

ESCAPE ROUTE: A construction worker places an American flag on the so-called Survivors Staircase Sunday before it was relocated to a temporary home 200 feet from the World Trade Center site in New York. The steps, used by thousands fleeing on Sept. 11, 2001, was moved to make room for redevelopment.

Drugs Found in D.C.'s Water

Study: Traces of 6 pharmaceuticals in area's drinking supply

The Washington area's drinking water contains trace amounts of six commonly used drugs that typically turn up in wastewater and cannot be filtered out by most treatment systems.

The pharmaceuticals — an anti-seizure medication, two anti-inflammatory drugs, two kinds of antibiotics and a common disinfectant — were found in very small concentrations in the Washington Aqueduct, which supplies water to more than 1 million people in the District, Arlington County, Falls Church and parts of Fairfax County. But scientists have raised concerns that the health effects of long-term exposure to these drugs and others are not known.

Pharmaceuticals, along with trace amounts of caffeine, were found in the drinking water supplies of 24 of 28 U.S. metropolitan areas tested. The findings were revealed as part of the first federal research on pharmaceuticals in water supplies, and those results are detailed in a report by The Associated Press.

In addition to caffeine, the drugs found in Washington's water supply include the well-known pain medications ibuprofen and naproxen, commonly found in Aleve.

D.C. officials say they are not alarmed by the findings because the drugs are found in a tiny fraction of the amount in a medical dose but view these "emerging contaminants" with concern. CAROL D. LEONNIG (THE WASHINGTON POST)

CATS

[Insert Tired 'Nine Lives' Line Here]

A scrawny female kitten apparently survived a trip across the Pacific Ocean and North America inside a shipping crate. Cleveland Animal Protective League Executive Director Sharon Harvey says a Cleveland company that received the crate of spooled steel coil Friday found the kitten inside one the spools. Harvey says the mother cat and other kittens found in the crate were dead. The crate came to Samsel Supply Co. from Singapore. It was sealed Feb. 4 and shipped three days later. The approximately 12-week-old kitten has been checked by a veterinarian and has responded well to being fed. (AP)

A spurned wife in Weifang, China, set fire to more than 400 cellphones she and her husband owned after he walked out on their marriage. The 37-year-old woman, identified only by her surname, Wang, was arrested for arson. The couple had owned a successful retail phone business. However, when their relationship hit rock-bottom, the woman gathered up their entire stock of more than 400 new mobile phones, reportedly valued at more than $42,000, and set them on fire before walking out of the house. Neighbors who saw smoke coming from the house called firefighters. (AP)

Baptists Shift on Global Warming

Religious leaders urge church members to fight climate change

NEW YORK | In a major shift, a group of Southern Baptist leaders said their denomination has been "too timid" on environmental issues and has a biblical duty to stop global warming.

urgency about climate change even within groups that once dismissed claims of an overheating planet as a liberal ruse. The conservative denomination has 16.3 million members and is the largest Protestant group in the U.S.

The signers of "A Southern Baptist Declaration on the Environment and Climate Change" acknowledged that not all Christians accept the science behind global warming. They said they do not expect fellow believers to back any proposed solutions that would violate Scripture.

However, the leaders said that current evidence of global warming is "substantial" and that the threat is too grave to wait for perfect knowledge about whether, or how much, people contribute to the trend.

"We believe our current denominational resolutions and engagement with these issues have often been too timid," the statement said. "Our cautious response to these issues in the face of mounting evidence may be seen by the world as uncaring, reckless and ill-informed. We can do better." RACHEL ZOLL (AP)

Democrats Win Seat of Former Speaker Hastert

CHICAGO | Nearly two years after taking control of Congress, the Democrats have claimed another prize by capturing former GOP House Speaker Dennis Hastert's seat — a development that Republicans say is not a harbinger of things to come.

The longtime Republican district fell to the Democrats Saturday when Bill Foster snatched the seat in a closely watched special election. While Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee Chairman Chris Van Hollen predicted Foster's win would send out a "political shock wave," Republicans downplayed the election's significance. (AP)

The percentage of the vote Bill Clinton won in the 1992 Democratic primary in Mississippi. Hillary Clinton currently trails Barack Obama in polls of the state, which votes Tuesday.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., wrapped up the Republican presidential nomination last week with victories in Ohio and Texas.

Now It's Two Against One

McCain hopes to hold the spotlight even as Democrats fight on

PHOENIX | Sen. John McCain sees one downside to having clinched the Republican presidential nomination: There's less attention focused on him than on the volatile contest between Democratic Sens. Hillary Rodham Clinton and Barack Obama.

McCain understands he must compete for the spotlight. "I think it's going to be very exciting to watch," he said of the Democrats.

"It makes me have to work harder, obviously, to make sure that we maintain the visibility," McCain told reporters last week. "It's also, when we think about it, a very long time from March to November. That's a long trip."

McCain wrapped up the Republican nomination last Tuesday with victories in Ohio and Texas, but the Democratic primaries there put Clinton back into contention after 11 straight losses to Obama. Their contest, and the attention it commands, could last for months.

McCain, in the meantime, must transition from smaller, state-by-state primary campaigns to a national campaign that in some ways is less suited to his style of campaigning.

Another focus in the coming weeks: raising money to compete against either Obama or Clinton in the general election.

"We can see the great job that our opponents have done in fundraising. We've got a lot of work to do," McCain said.

McCain's schedule has been packed with fundraisers — he held five in two days last week — and he will continue to raise money next week during a swing through the Midwest and the Northeast.

More Than 9,000 Foreclosures Hit Washington DC Area

Real estate meltdown triggers investor bonanza. See why 2008 is the best time in 50 years to buy houses, apartment and office buildings, and more.

Make A New Year's Resolution to GET RICH in 2008

"Foreclosures are just one of the many new investment opportunities in this historic buyer's market. Discover how to profit safely with my exclusive moneymaking real estate strategies you won't find anywhere else."

— Robert Allen, Author and President of the Robert Allen Institute

The current real estate meltdown is creating an investor's bonanza. That's right. Today's beaten-down real estate market is the perfect time to get fantastic deals on wonderful properties.

After several years of being the underdog, buyers now have the advantage. Sellers are willing to unload properties at deep discounts. Banks too.

I have students making $300,000, $400,000, and even $500,000 using my strategies designed exactly for the market we're in now.

I'm Robert Allen, author of the runaway best-selling book that showed how almost anyone can get rich with real estate, even if they have no money.

At my FREE workshop, you'll see how to buy properties in today's market for 50%... 60%... 70%... below appraised value and leverage those investments for maximum profit. This is no time to be on the sidelines.

You can own a million dollars of prime Washington D.C. real estate in the next 90 days.

Now's the time: Fantastic properties

At my free workshop, you'll see why the best time to make money in real estate is in a buyer's market, like right now.

Plus, I'll show you why my financing techniques are perfect for today's tight credit market — and you can learn about them at my FREE workshop.

Now's the time: Hidden bargains

The real estate market has cycles. It goes up for a while. Then drops for a while. Most investors think a downturn is bad news. So they wait it out, letting the truly terrific deals go to the investors who know how to take full advantage.

The opportunities are everywhere: foreclosures, preforeclosures, probate real estate, rental property, commercial property, bank-owned property, short sales. Learn about how you can make huge profits in today's market.

Now's the time: FREE workshop in your area

My famous free workshop is coming to your area. Many people who attended this free event now own real estate worth millions.

Your journey to ultimate wealth begins at my workshop. You'll get plenty of smart tips and hands-on negotiating techniques you can take home with you — FREE.

Dean: Fla. Ballots Could be Mailed

But DNC chairman insists party will not pay for primary redo

WASHINGTON | Democratic National Committee Chairman Howard Dean on Sunday said a do-over primary for Florida Democrats could be conducted through the mail.

Appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," Dean said a mail-in primary is "actually a very good process."

"Every voter gets a ballot in the mail," the former Vermont governor said. "It's comprehensive; you get to vote if you're in Iraq or in a nursing home. It's not a bad way to do this."

As for who pays for the primary, Dean said, "That is a problem," reiterating that the party needs its money for the general election campaign against Republican Sen. John McCain of Arizona.

The Democratic National Committee stripped Florida and Michigan of all their convention delegates — a total of 313 — for holding their primaries too early, making both contests meaningless. New York Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton won both states but no delegates. Her rival, Illinois Sen. Barack Obama, did not appear on Michigan's ballot.

Howard Dean has expressed support for a second Democratic primary in Fla.

But the disqualification of Florida and Michigan has created a headache for the Democratic party due to the tight race between Obama and Clinton. Officials from both states are trying to

Speaking on ABC's "This Week," Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., appeared amenable to a mail-in solution for his state, though with less enthusiasm.

"The one possibility would be some kind of a mail-in caucus," he said. "But there's some real problems with that, too. Not just cost, but the security issue. How do you make sure that hundreds of thousands, perhaps a million or more ballots can be properly counted and that duplicate ballots can be avoided?"

Police search for man photographed using Carson's ATM card

ATHENS, GA. | Heartbroken mourners struggled Sunday to understand why someone would fatally shoot a popular University of North Carolina student body president and cut short a life with such promise.

Hundreds of people from Eve Carson's hometown of Athens and the Chapel Hill, N.C., university filled Athens First United Methodist Church and fellowship hall. Many wore Carolina blue ribbons in her honor.

"We should not be here this afternoon," the senior minister, Bill Britt, said, angry that Carson was not instead celebrating spring break or getting ready for the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament.

Britt remembered Carson, 22, as someone who made a difference and saw the good in others.

Carson was found Wednesday morning lying on a street about a mile from campus. She had been shot several times, including once in the right temple.

Detectives have been searching for a man photographed using Carson's ATM card. ERRIN HAINES (AP)

Zapatero Wins 2nd Term in Spain

Ruling Socialist Party emerges victorious in parliamentary vote

MADRID, SPAIN | Spain's Socialist prime minister won re-election Sunday, as voters dismissed worries about a slumping economy, immigration and resurgent Basque militants to hand him a second term.

The results were a clear endorsement of Prime Minister Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero's record, which includes reforms such as legalizing gay marriage and granting on-demand divorce, once thought unthinkable in this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic country.

Zapatero also withdrew Spanish troops from Iraq and launched a drive to cede more power to Spain's semiautonomous regions.

"The Spanish people have spoken clearly and decided to start a new era," Zapatero told euphoric supporters in Madrid. "I will govern with a firm but open hand."

With 92 percent of the vote counted, Zapatero's Socialist party had 43.8 percent compared to 40.1 percent for the conservative Popular Party, according to the Interior Ministry.

Opposition conservatives conceded defeat, but took solace in the fact that they picked up more parliamentary seats than the Socialists.

While Zapatero's party picked up seats in the lower house, it fell short of a majority and will have to form an alliance with smaller regional parties to govern.

Sunday's vote came two days after the killing of Socialist politician Isaias Carrasco at the hands of the Basque militant group ETA, which prompted both parties to cancel final campaign appearances. PAUL HAVEN (AP)

China Foils 2 Terror Schemes

Police disclose separate plots targeting Beijing Olympics and a jetliner

BEIJING | Chinese police broke up a terror plot targeting the Beijing Olympics, and a flight crew foiled an apparent attempt to crash a Chinese jetliner in a separate case, officials said Sunday.

Wang Lequan, the top Communist Party official in the western region of Xinjiang, said materials seized in a January raid in the regional capital, Urumqi, had described a plot with a purpose "specifically to sabotage the staging of the Beijing Olympics."

"Their goal was very clear," Wang told reporters in Beijing.

Wang cited no other evidence and earlier reports on the raid had made no mention of Olympic targets.

Speaking at the same meeting, Xinjiang's governor said a flight crew prevented an apparent attempt to crash a China Southern flight from Urumqi on Friday. Nur Bekri did not specifically label the incident a terrorist act, saying it remained under investigation.

Pakistani Victors Agree to Coalition

Election winners announce joint rule, vow to restore judges

BHURBAN, PAKISTAN | Pakistan's election winners agreed to form a coalition government Sunday and promised that parliament would restore senior judges fired last year by President Pervez Musharraf in a bid to secure the U.S.-backed leader's continued rule.

In the capital, Islamabad, police fired tear gas at protesters at the residence of the Supreme Court chief suspended by Musharraf one year earlier, a move that triggered the turbulence still dogging Pakistan's return to democracy.

Asif Ali Zardari, the widower of slain opposition leader Benazir Bhutto, and Nawaz Sharif, whose government was ousted in Musharraf's 1999 military coup, announced their pact after talks at a resort town in the foothills of the Himalayas.

"We are bound together in the spirit of democracy," Zardari said at a news conference.

The move has been widely expected since their parties won a Feb. 18 election.

The two parties have vowed to fight Islamic extremism, raising Western hopes of stability and renewed commitment to fighting al-Qaeda and Taliban militants. They have also pledged to tackle mounting economic problems, including inflation. ZARAR KHAN (AP)

Army Spc. Monica Lin Brown, 19, stands at a U.S. base in Khost, Afghanistan. Brown will become the first female soldier in Afghanistan to receive the Silver Star.

U.S. Woman to Be Given Silver Star

Teen will be 2nd female soldier since WWII to earn medal for valor

CAMP SALERNO, AFGHANISTAN | A 19-year-old medic from Texas will become the first woman in Afghanistan and only the second female soldier since World War II to receive the Silver Star, the nation's third-highest medal for valor.

Army Spc. Monica Lin Brown saved the lives of her fellow soldiers after a roadside bomb tore through a convoy of Humvees in the eastern Paktia province in April 2007, the military said.

After the explosion, which wounded five soldiers in her unit, Brown ran through insurgent gunfire and used her body to shield wounded comrades as mortars fell less than 100 yards away, the military said.

"I did not really think about anything except for getting the guys to a safer location and getting them taken care of," Brown told The Associated Press on Saturday at a U.S. base.

Brown, of Lake Jackson, Texas, is scheduled to receive the Silver Star later this month. She was part of a four-vehicle convoy on patrol when a bomb struck one of the Humvees.

"We stopped the convoy. I opened up my door and grabbed my aid bag," Brown said.

She ran toward the burning vehicle as insurgents opened fire. "I assessed the patients to see how bad they were. We tried to move them to a safer location," Brown said.

Pentagon policy prohibits women from serving in front-line combat roles — in the infantry, armor or artillery, for example. But the nature of the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, with no real front lines, has seen women soldiers take part in close-quarters combat more than in previous conflicts. FISNIK ABRASHI (AP)

BY THE NUMBERS: The flow of blood may be ebbing, but the flood of money into the Iraq war is rising, new analyses show. In 2008, the Iraq war will cost approximately $12 billion per month — triple the rate of its earliest years — Nobel Prize-winning economist Joseph E. Stiglitz and co-author Linda J. Bilmes report in a new book, "The Three Trillion Dollar War." (AP)

D.C. Holds Foreclosure Auction

More than 200 homes bid on at Washington Convention Center

Emmanuel Warren was with his wife and eight children seeking a home with lots more room.

Franco Abbruzzetti was looking for a house for his son.

Carlos Amaya and his pregnant wife, Shardonna, had their eye on a five-bedroom in Bowie but lost out to a higher bidder.

It was a house auction event Sunday at the Washington Convention Center, fueled by the skyrocketing number of local foreclosures, and it saw hopes fulfilled and others deferred, as more than 200 homes went on the block.

While tuxedo-clad auctioneer Mark Buleziuk chattered rapid-fire prices, and the public address system blared the '80s hit, "Living in America," several thousand people bid on ramblers, townhouses, condos, bungalows and McMansions in the District, Maryland and Virginia.

All the homes had been foreclosed on and were owned by banks trying to recoup some of their losses, according to the Real Estate Disposition Corp., of Irvine, Calif., which ran the auction.

"It's clear by what's out there in the media that there is a high rate of foreclosure," said Mary Clare Quella, vice president and associate general counsel for the auction firm. "Lenders do have large portfolios in foreclosed homes."

The auction continues Monday at the Baltimore Convention Center and Tuesday at the Greater Richmond Convention Center.

Va. Targets Adults Kissing Children

Those who French-kiss children would have to register as offenders

RICHMOND, VA. | State legislators passed a law Saturday that would require adults who French kiss a child younger than 13 to register as a sex offender.

Those convicted of tongue-kissing a child would be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by up to one year in jail and a $2,500 fine.

The House of Delegates passed the legislation 96-1 and the Senate 39-0.

The bill now heads to Gov. Timothy M. Kaine, who said he supports the legislation.

Delegate Riley Ingram, R-Hopewell, introduced the bill on behalf of a woman whose 10-year-old daughter was French-kissed by the 62-year-old husband of her baby sitter.

The only crime prosecutors could charge the man with was contributing to the delinquency of a minor, which did not require that he register as a sex offender.

Ingram and other members of the House fought to make the crime a felony, but in the final day of the 2008 General Assembly session gave in to senators who thought that classifying it as a felony was too harsh.

Delegate Phillip Hamilton, R-Newport News, cast the lone nay vote, refusing to back down from his belief that the crime should be a felony.

"I think that type of behavior is so egregious it warrants a felony," Hamilton said.

Ingram said he was satisfied that a conviction would land someone on the sex offender registry.

Stafford Lunchroom Goes Gourmet

Former pastry chef makes lunches from scratch for kids' school

STAFFORD, VA. | The kindergartner eyes the red lunch tray Jenna Ortner hands her and scowls.

On it are a miniature meat loaf, oven-baked potato wedges with thyme and rosemary, and a bright pile of sauteed green beans.

Solemnly, the little girl says, "I don't like beans." "Well, give them a try," Ortner says. "You might like these."

It's the first of three lunch periods at Holy Cross Academy in Stafford County, and Ortner is way too busy to monitor the fate of those particular beans.

In Ortner's previous life as a pastry chef for the Inn at Little Washington, persuading timid palates was never an issue.

But as Jenna and Andreas Ortner added to their family, she stepped back from her demanding professional schedule to focus on daughters Chloe, Julia and Isabel. Last year, with the older girls in school at Holy Cross, Ortner, 33, sized up the school lunch program and saw room for improvement.

Lunches offered through the school were prepackaged and uninspiring. They met school-lunch nutritional standards set forth by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, but that hardly mattered if most of each meal ended up in the trash. With support from her husband, who is a sous-chef at Foti's in Culpeper, Ortner spent the summer developing menus for a completely made-from-scratch lunch program. Last fall, she began serving lunch for students, teachers and parent volunteers at the Catholic elementary school in Stafford County.

Freshly prepared, nutritionally balanced meals are offered for preorder at $3 apiece, including milk. (AP)

Personal Tech

The Numark TTX turntable can be attached to a computer through its onboard USB port to transfer music from record albums into the digital MP3 format.

Ripped Vinyl Goes Digital

Numark Inc.'s USB turntable converts old LPs into MP3 format

OLD-SCHOOL | Most people gave up on their vinyl music collections two decades ago, when compact discs all but nudged LPs off store shelves for good.

DJ equipment maker Numark Inc. is looking to breathe new life into the favorites you held onto with a USB-equipped turntable. It can pipe the tunes of yesteryear into your computer, where you can store them in digital form — or load them onto a media player and take them on the road.

The Numark TTX USB ($399) is a sturdy, DJ-quality turntable with well-fashioned components and nice styling. Nothing about this unit threatens to date it visually, and that's important if you're considering showcasing a turntable alongside some other home theater devices.

The Numark includes the software needed to import music from 33s and 45s to a computer hard drive. Once you plug the USB cable from the turntable into the computer and launch the application, it's as simple as pressing record and lowering the needle down onto the album surface.

Of course, this is a real-time affair: There are no shortcuts to ripping vinyl to a digital file. If you want to convert 50 minutes of album music into MP3 format, it takes 50 minutes of recording plus a few minutes for the conversion and encoding, in contrast to the few minutes it takes to burn a CD with files already in digital form.

The Numark unit faithfully replicates the music, along with the occasional crackle and hiss of a weathered album.

The files were encoded as MP3s at 160 kilobits per second, slightly better than the default 128 kbps in most CD ripping programs.

The tricky part came when I wanted to insert the track titles. One method was to lift the tone arm after the end of a song, effectively pausing the process and clicking "next" on the application, an action that took us to a screen to insert the track info. Doing that for a select number of album tracks was tedious.

Crosby Gets Help to Beat the Caps

Penguins star credited with the game-winner after Backstrom's gaffe

CAPITALS | Sidney Crosby again got the better of Alex Ovechkin, thanks to a rookie who put the puck into his own net with 28 seconds to play.

Nicklas Backstrom's attempt to clear the puck went horribly wrong, providing the Pittsburgh Penguins with the winning goal in Sunday's 4-2 victory over the Washington Capitals.

In a crowd in front of the crease, Backstrom looked as if he were wearing the wrong-colored jersey when he got his stick on a rebound and backhanded it past goalie Cristobal Huet.

Backstrom, who wasn't available for comment after the game, was either hoping to push the puck gently to Huet or forcefully clear it to the side of the net.

The win also gave Crosby another notch in the rivalry with Ovechkin. The Penguins are 10-1 against the Capitals when both are playing.

Brooks Laich and Alexander Semin scored for the Capitals, who have lost back-to-back games in regulation for the first time since coach Bruce Boudreau was hired on Thanksgiving Day. Washington remains seven points behind first-place Carolina in the Southeast Division, prompting Boudreau to say his team will have to "hope a little bit" to get to the playoffs.

Busch Gets Toyota 1st NASCAR Win

No. 18 leads for last 50 laps, becomes Atlanta's youngest winner ever

AUTO RACING | Kyle Busch gave Toyota its first NASCAR Sprint Cup victory, driving away from the pack in the waning laps Sunday to win the Kobalt Tools 500 at Atlanta Motor Speedway.

Busch, winning for the first time since last March 25 at Bristol, took the lead for good with 50 laps to go when Carl Edwards, trying for a third straight victory, went out with a broken transmission.

The first win for the Japanese automaker in NASCAR's top series came in its 40th race.

The win also put the No. 18 back in Victory Circle, where former Joe Gibbs Racing driver Bobby Labonte won six races in that car.

"The 18! The 18! The 18 is back at Atlanta," Busch screamed on the radio after crossing the finish line ahead of teammate Tony Stewart.

Busch became the youngest winner on Atlanta's 1.5-mile oval since Jeff Gordon won in 1995 at 23 years, 6 months.

Kyle Busch celebrates after easily winning the Kobalt Tools 500 in Atlanta.

Stewart, who continued to complain bitterly about the tires furnished this year by Goodyear, and Dale Earnhardt Jr. both passed Greg Biffle in the final laps to take second and third, with pole winner Gordon fifth.

Two-time reigning Cup champion Jimmie Johnson had another so-so day, coming back from a lap down twice to finish 13th, the last driver on the lead lap. (AP)

Wiz Let Wins Slip Away

Washington is drained after months of playing without its All-Stars

WIZARDS | There wasn't much coach Eddie Jordan could do as he watched his weary Washington Wizards let a winnable game slip away.

The Wizards had whittled a 19-point deficit down to a manageable five with 1½ minutes left, and some tough, denying defense forced the Charlotte Bobcats into a late-in-the-shot-clock 3-pointer that missed.

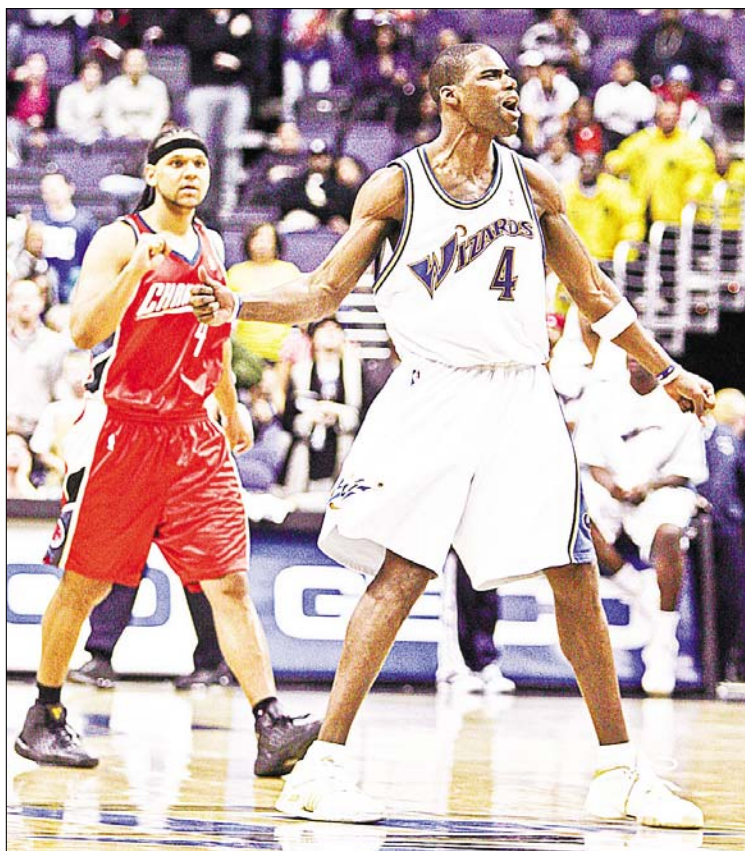

All Washington needed was to grab a rebound. But the Bobcats got the ball.

Fast-forward, and the Bobcats hoisted another off-the-mark 3. And, once again, the Wizards failed to haul in a rebound, allowing Charlotte to run more time off the clock and eventually pad its lead in what turned out to be a 100-97 victory for the Bobcats on Saturday night.

"We couldn't come up with a rebound," Jordan said. "Just couldn't chase it down."

To Jordan, that sequence symbolized how much his short-handed team was dragging Saturday, when the Wizards had a chance to get back to .500 for the first time since Feb. 6. Instead, they are only a game ahead of Philadelphia for sixth place in the Eastern Conference.

"We just need to come back and see if we can get some legs under us

Antawn Jamison tries to solicit a foul call in the final seconds of the Wizards' 100-97 loss to Charlotte on Saturday. Washington is just one game ahead of the No. 7 spot.

for this week," Jordan said. "It's just been a draining two days for us."

The Wizards will be back at practice Monday, when there is expected to be a positive sign: All-Star forward Caron Butler, who hasn't played in a game in more than a month because of a hip injury, is slated to participate in full-contact work.

Without Butler and All-Star point guard Gilbert Arenas — who has appeared in only eight games all season because of surgery on his left knee — the Wizards have somehow managed to stay in the thick of the playoff chase.

Jordan and his players know they can't afford to have many more close-but-no-cigar finishes like Saturday's. (AP)

Cink Falls Apart on the Back Nine

Sean O'Hair picks up a win for the 1st time since his rookie year

GOLF | Sean O'Hair took advantage of a stunning collapse by Stewart Cink to win the PODS Championship, closing with a 2-under 69 on Sunday to energize his young career and earn a trip to the Masters.

O'Hair hadn't won since his rookie season in 2005 and felt as if he had been going nowhere over the last couple of seasons. But he turned it around on the back nine of Innisbrook with a 30-foot birdie and two par putts building such a margin that he could afford a bogey on the last hole.

This victory sends him to Augusta National next month, and he will move into the top 40 in the world to qualify for the World Golf Championship in two weeks.

Cink had a four-shot lead after two holes Sunday, but dropped four shots in a four-hole stretch along the back nine.

The only consolation was making a 50-foot birdie on the 17th hole and that allowed him to join a six-way tie for second.

Cink closed with a 74 and remains winless since the 2004 Bridgestone Invitational. O'Hair finished at 4-under 280, the highest score to win at Innisbrook after a week of whipping wind. But he was the only play to shoot par or better all four rounds. (AP)

The age of Randy Johnson, who is scheduled to make his first start of the spring on Monday for Arizona against Colorado. Johnson had surgery on his back last year.

Jessie Sapp leaps into the arms of Austin Freeman after the Hoyas beat Louisville to win the Big East regular season title.

More to Hoyas Than Luck

Georgetown survives close calls in its run to a 2nd consecutive title

HOYAS HOOPS | According to Rick Pitino, Georgetown deserved the victory that gave the school its second consecutive Big East regular season title.

As for some of the Hoyas' other wins?

"They've been lucky," the Louisville coach said.

The No. 11 Hoyas (25-4, 15-3) won another close one Saturday, beating the No. 12 Cardinals 55-52 to claim the regular season crown and the No. 1 seed in the upcoming Big East tournament. This one featured no fluke plays at the end — DuJuan Summers' open 3-pointer with 40 seconds was the deciding basket — and it increased Georgetown's record to 6-0 in games decided by three points or fewer.

"They won tonight because they were better," Pitino said after Saturday's game. "Tonight it wasn't luck."

Some say the top teams win games by big margins, not small ones. The theory goes that if the Hoyas keep flirting with danger, the odds will catch up to them, perhaps in the win-or-go-home NCAA tournament.

Others say the ability to consistently close out tight victories shows the mettle of a team, that the senior-led Hoyas have shown the ability to thrive under the type of pressure still to come in the NCAA tournament.

As the beneficiary of the strange victories, Georgetown coach John Thompson III has said repeatedly that a win is a win — no matter how pretty or ugly. When asked about Pitino's assertion that the Hoyas are lucky, Thompson pleaded guilty — in a roundabout sort of way.

"It takes luck," Thompson said. "There's no doubt about that. At the same time, that group in there has put themselves in a position to be lucky. We believe in what we're doing, how we're doing it, so when luck kind of rolls around, we're there to take it."

"Like anything in life, just putting yourself into position to be lucky is what it's all about. So, if you want to call it luck, we'll take it." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

UNC Tops Duke for Women's Crown

WOMEN'S HOOPS | For the second straight day, North Carolina celebrated an Atlantic Coast Conference championship at the expense of its biggest rival.

Erlana Larkins and Cetera DeGraffenreid each scored 17 points Sunday to help the second-ranked Tar Heels beat No. 12 Duke 86-73 in the tournament championship, giving North Carolina its fourth straight title while almost certainly locking up a No. 1 seed in the NCAA tournament.

The top-seeded Tar Heels (30-2), became the first to win nine ACC tournament titles.

The victory came one night after the North Carolina men's team beat Duke 76-68 to claim the league's regular-season crown.

North Carolina had beaten Duke this season, 93-76 and took an 82-51 win in the regular-season finale to secure the school's first unbeaten ACC regular-season record. (AP)

WHAT'S THAT SOUND? Jim Carrey voices Horton, an elephant with a friend he can hear but not see, in "Horton Hears a Who!"

Who's 'Horton'?

He's a product of the Seuss brain, coming to a theater near you

ELEPHANT | More than six decades after Dr. Seuss introduced his famously faithful elephant, Horton, to young readers, the beloved pachyderm is finally stampeding into movie theaters this Friday in the animated feature "Horton Hears a Who!"

Horton is the creation of the late cartoonist and author Theodor Geisel, who wrote and illustrated dozens of children's books under the pen name Dr. Seuss (his mother's maiden name). Geisel introduced the compassionate elephant in the 1940 illustrated book "Horton Hatches the Egg" and reprised the gentle giant in the 1954 tale of how Horton hears a small noise coming from what appears to be a speck of dust.

Horton soon discovers the speck is home to a city of microscopic Whos, led by their protective mayor. Their city, Who-ville, is in danger of destruction unless Horton can find a safe place for the speck far from the jungle where he resides.

Seuss' rhyming books have entertained generations of children. Many of his works have been turned into cartoons. Some served as source material for the Broadway musical, "Seussical." But never before has the imaginative world of Who-ville been beamed on the big screen in computer-generated form.

Carrey is excited to be part of the Seuss legacy once again.

"I just feel wonderful that two of these projects have come my way," he says. "I'm such a fan of Dr. Seuss, so it's a great thing."

Geisel's widow, Audrey, was instrumental in securing Carrey's participation. When the idea of turning her late husband's "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" into a movie was brought to her, she asked whether Carrey was available. "The Grinch," released in 2000, became an instant family movie classic.

"Horton Hears a Who!" reunites Carrey with Steve Carell, who voices the Mayor of Who-ville. The adventure comedy also features Carol Burnett, Seth Rogen, Isla Fischer, Amy Poehler and Jonah Hill.

"I'm sort of in awe [of Carrey], honestly," says Carell. "I remember watching 'Liar, Liar,'" he recalls, referring to Carrey's hit 1997 comedy. "I was thinking it looks like the most fun you could possibly have. In my wildest dreams, I didn't think I would ever be able to be a part of that. I'm still pinching myself." Barbie Girl, Backwoods World

Dolly Parton opts for a little bit of country on her latest offering

DVD | "Backwoods Barbie" is being touted as Dolly Parton's first full-fledged country record in ages, raising two questions: Which Parton, and which country?

Following a richly rewarding return to her bluegrass roots with a string of albums starting with 1999's Grammy-winning "The Grass

Is Blue," what we get is more the pop-leaning Dolly of the late '70s and early '80s than the homespun country bombshell who surfaced in the '60s as Porter Wagoner's protege and duet partner.

The album's lead single, "Better Get to Livin'," is preachier than typical, her stab at Oprah-like life advice to her legion of admirers. The title track delivers better on the wellspring of humility that's long been her greatest asset. Extending her penchant for renditions of pop classics, she turns

She's done bluegrass, she's dealt with pop—but this time, it's pure country.

Smokey Robinson's "The Tracks of My Tears" credibly country.

"Shinola" brims with her down-home sass, and "Cologne" transcends a potentially melodramatic lyric, thanks to her intensely vulnerable vocal. The ratio of less-memorable tracks is higher than on those recent bluegrass outings, but there's enough of the Parton who is one of the era's greatest country writers and singers to make it worth hearing. Ridley Scott targets the summit that put heat on the Cold War

DIPLOMACY | It was a tipping point in modern history, marking the moment that the Cold War began to end. It brought together two iconic leaders, Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev, who would pull the world back from the brink of destruction.

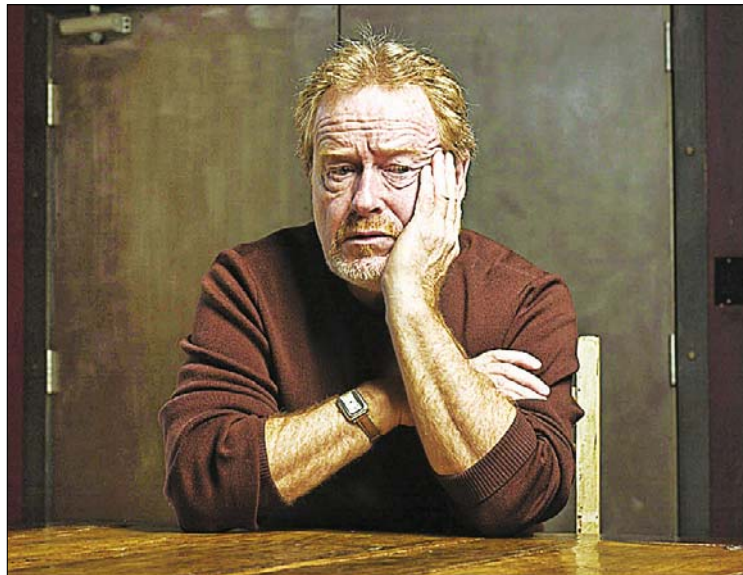

But for helmer Ridley Scott, the 1986 Reykjavik summit was more than that. It was a very human tale with every ingredient for a gripping drama.

"These are fascinating historical characters, larger-than-life figures, but I want to show who they were and why they did what they did," the veteran British director said. "Their actions helped shape history, paving the way for the end of the Cold War."

Scott has signed on to make a movie of the summit, which saw the U.S. and the Soviet Union commit to reverse their buildup of nuclear weapons. It is, even by his ambitious standards, a bold project.

The as-yet-unnamed movie will have to distill Reagan and Gorbachev's 10 hours of face-to-face meetings into a compelling feature, and show how one cold, rainy October weekend transformed a tiny town on this remote, mid-Atlantic island into the center of the universe.

SIGN OF PEACE: Scott plans to dramatize the talks between Reagan and Gorbachev.

But, Scott points out, "This generation might well say, 'Summit, what summit?' They might ask, 'Who is Gorbachev?'"

Though Washington politics has become polarized in recent years, Scott wants to be as impartial as possible. "If you do a dramatic version of an event, you have to get as close as possible to the truth," he says.

The Reykjavik script is expected to contain subplots that appear almost comically surreal. The summit itself took place in the former British ambassador's supposedly haunted residence, known as the Hofdi House. It was so cramped that the two secret services, the KGB and the CIA, had to share a tiny basement that, almost fatefully, had its own bar.

Then there's the supporting cast, which will include portrayals of CIA Director William Casey, Colin Powell, Richard Perle, Nancy Reagan and Raisa Gorbachev. LEO CENDROWICZ (THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

THE HOUSE THAT TONY BUILT: Nick D'Urso, the real-life manager of the strip club that fronted for the Bada Bing on "The Sopranos," says he's holding off renovating the strip club in Lodi, N.J., after getting a tip that a "Sopranos" movie would be made.

It's All Simply Fundamental

Chris Hedges doesn't believe in atheists — or other extremists

RELIGION | The New Atheists — Sam Harris, Christopher Hitchens and Richard Dawkins, to name the three most prominent — see themselves as enemies of the Christian right.

But Chris Hedges doesn't see it that way. In his new book, "I Don't Believe in Atheists," he attacks both groups of extremists for their utopian ideas, which, he says, are more similar than either camp would care to admit.

While the Christian right believes society is moving toward a time when Jesus will descend from heaven and create a paradise, the new atheist movement believes that science and technology will move society toward utopia. And while these atheists believe the world will be perfected when religion is eradicated, the Christian right believes nonbelievers need to be converted.

Hedges views extremism as polarizing and threatening to global cohesion.

Hedges says that these groups have essentially the same belief system — and he believes them dangerous. "What I worry about is that, in the event of another catastrophic terrorist attack ... you'll have a convergence of views where the Christian right and secularists will call for a kind of blood-letting against Muslims, both outside our gates and the six million Muslims inside the United States," says Hedges, a longtime reporter who covered the war in the former Yugoslavia and spent seven years living in the Middle East. "The rhetoric that each side engages in is very toxic." IAN HERBERT (EXPRESS)

Television

NON-AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL: Justin Timberlake is executive-producing an NBC pilot about a bachelor who strikes out with the ladies. "My Problem With Women" follows Jose as he attempts to understand his romantic failures through therapy sessions.

‘Canterbury’s’ Tale

Julianna Margulies is at her sassiest in Fox’s new legal yarn

FORMER NURSE | Julianna Margulies returns to network television in “Canterbury’s Law” (8 p.m., Fox), a drama with a troubled lawyer at its center. Elizabeth Canterbury (Margulies) operates at full throttle. She’s often seen bossing around legal underlings who are hard-pressed to live up to her demanding expectations, particularly after she’s just fired the receptionist on a whim.

Aidan Quinn plays her dot-

ing husband. But he seems to be walking on eggshells in her presence. There’s a void at the center of their marriage that we don’t discover until the end of the first episode. Could that be why she’s carrying on an affair? Or why she takes the hopeless case of a heavily medicated loner accused of killing the son of a prominent family?

Margulies left “ER” in 2000, a move that was surprising to fans. Now, Margulies appears to have come late to the role of a “complicated” professional legal woman. After years of watching Helen Mirren in “Prime Suspect,” Kyra Sedgwick in “The Closer” and Holly Hunter in “Saving Grace,” it’s become a rather crowded field. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

SHE’S BACK. AGAIN. “Celebrity Expose” (8 p.m., MyNetwork) looks at THE COMEBACK OF WHITNEY HOUSTON.

AND ARE THEY SINGLE? THE BACHELOR: WHERE ARE THEY NOW? (8 p.m., ABC) catches up with past participants.

MASTERPIECE THEATER Brush up on your Shakespeare with Orson Welles in the 1948 adaptation of MACBETH (8 p.m., TCM), followed by Laurence Olivier’s take on HAMLET (10 p.m.) from the same year.

GROWING PAINS HIGH SCHOOL CONFIDENTIAL (10 p.m., WE) follows 12 girls from their freshman year to graduation. “Confidential” consists of first-person interviews with the students

An artist who uses clay in a new way earns wide renown

Jean Schulman has made it into the permanent collection at the Smithsonian by painting with vivid colors from the earth.

For more than 40 years, she has used clay dug from the soil of Alabama and elsewhere as a dye for fabric in her batik paintings. Alabama is known for its deep red clay soil, but Schulman's batiks include shades of red, yellow, brown and even pink, purple, gray and green. At one site, she was able to find about 25 colors in an area the size of a football field.

Schulman, 80, first tried using clay as a dye more than 40 years ago when she visited a friend's classroom to give a batik demonstration and saw little jars of clay. She dipped a brush in the jars, painted on her fabric and was instantly won over.

“I haven't really found anyone who was actually doing art pieces using clay dyes on fabric.”

JEAN SCHULMAN, BATIK ARTIST

“It absolutely wiped me out,” she recalled. “You really can't imagine until you see a synthetic dye next to a clay dye and one of them just looks like it's alive.”

As she began using clay dyes in her paintings and traveled to dig up new samples, Schulman began doing research on both natural dyes and primitive arts. Mud has been used on boards, metal and found materials by folk artists such as Jimmie Lee Sudduth, who died last year at 97. But clay as a dye on cloth for a batik?

“I don't think anything is new, but I haven't really found anyone who was actually doing art pieces using clay dyes on fabric,” Schulman said.

The technique has earned a spot for five of her pieces in the permanent collection of the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of American History.

Katherine Dirks, associate curator of the museum's textile division, said the museum was interested in Schulman's works because of the unusual technique.

Schulman, who is also listed in the Washington-based Database of Women Artists at the National Museum of Women in the Arts, has made studying the use of clay her life's work, though she acknowledges there are still a lot of things she doesn't quite understand. An art teacher who retired in 1986 after 20 years in the Muscle Shoals school system, she still can't explain why the colors don't mix to make new colors the way other dyes do.

“If you put yellow clay and red clay together, you don't get orange; you just get mud,” she said. “I don't know why.”

Another characteristic of clay dyes is that they don't seem to fade. Schulman said she looks back now at the first pieces she did using clay dyes, some of which have been hanging framed for about 40 years, and the colors are just as vibrant as when she painted them.

Likewise, the clay paints themselves can't be damaged. In her home studio, jars of old baby food, pickles and salad dressing hold dried, cracked clay and are grouped on wooden shelves by source. Schulman said all she has to do to make the clay usable is add water.

As canvases for her batik painting, Schulman mostly uses antique linens that she finds at yard sales or gets from friends. She uses the old cloth in part because, she said, it's hard to find new fabrics that aren't treated with permanent press chemicals or synthetic dyes.

Her works have been featured in shows all over the country, and she has received recognition both for her art and for her teaching. She will receive the 2008 National Retired Art Educator of the Year Award from the National Art Education Association this month.

“She's just so positive and excited about what she does,” said Debbie Bradford, director of the Muscle Shoals Education Foundation. “Even though she's been retired for more than 20 years, her love of art and her pride in her former students shows every time you talk to her.”

New Trends in Bloom

Flowers

Gardeners embrace sustainable practices, minimalism in design

The Philadelphia Flower show is not known for its subtlety. Bromeliads, magnolias, orchids and lilacs in eye-popping colors spilled from balconies for the 2008 show's New Orleans-theme settings.

But if you were to look beyond the show-offs, you'd have seen something subtler at the show, which was held March 2 through 9: an emphasis on minimalism and all things green.

"The message of being environmentally conscious is certainly big," said Sam Lemheney, the show's design director, "whether it's using more native or noninvasive plant material with minimal maintenance or having green roofs [covered with sedum or other hardy plants] that absorb water, provide insulation, decrease runoff water and help on your energy bills."

The 2008 Philadelphia Flower Show emphasized all things green and eco-friendly.

Forward-thinking landscape architects are also embracing the idea of sustainability — from using reclaimed, non-chemically treated wood to stones excavated during other construction projects.

"We look at how we can reuse materials so they don't end up in a landfill," said Thomas Johnston of ThinkGreen, a landscape architecture and construction company in suburban Glenside that uses ecologically minded principles in its

“The style of floral design now is more modern. ... It's more of a European feel.”

ThinkGreen works features into its designs that mitigate water runoff and help recharge nearby aquifers, he said.

Customers are seeking more environmentally friendly choices, and they've become more design conscious from trend-spotting magazines and Web sites, said floral designer Peter Couture. Growers also are trying to cut back on pesticide use, and florists are steering away from plastic containers, he said.

Another trend that was spotted at the show was minimalism. For the backyard, think native and noninvasive plants that require less water and chemical fertilizers; for the dining table, think structure and simplicity.

"The style of floral design now is more modern," Lemheney said. "Not so much the mass arrangements we're used to seeing. ... It's more of a European feel that's starting to catch on here."

The American Institute of Floral Designers' exhibit featured cutting-edge, monochromatic arrangements in harvest gold, chocolate brown, sage green and avocado tones reminiscent of the 1940s and '50s.

As in fashion and home decor, floral designs are moving away from opulent multicolor creations and toward the simpler elegance of monochromatic combinations, said Couture, a member of the national organization.

"Minimalism has become very much part of design in the last couple years," he said.

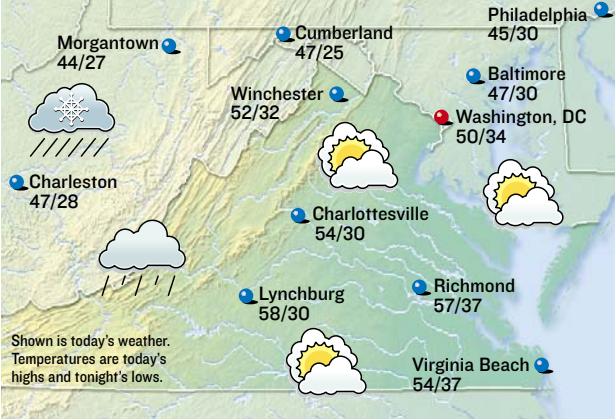

Beyond color, that also translates into spare, complementary arrangements in a group of simpler containers instead of one large "hotel-lobby look" vase, he said.

For people who aren't fans of the monochromatic look, the show also featured rooms made up in two new color trends turning up at banquets and other special events: combinations of either hot pink and orange, or dark purple and blue, Lemheney said. JOANN LOVIGLIO (AP)

Prom Prep

Teens make their own dresses or turn to vintage gowns

Neev Zaiet has the dress and shoes ready and her hairstyle picked out.

There is still the small matter of finding a boy to escort the 16-year-old junior to the Valencia (Calif.) High School prom. But the big night is still two months away.

In this age of savvy teens, the annual high school dance has taken on an aura of breathless anticipation rivaling a wedding. With attendees, their parents and schools getting involved to plan one night of formality for teens who usually slink to class in jeans, students see the dance as a fashion show to unleash their inner divas.

"You search for months for the perfect dress and spend more time trying to find the perfect accessories," says Dominique Marinello, 15, of Santa Clarita, Calif. "The truth is that no one, your date especially, realizes what it takes to prepare for the big day, but it's great to feel like the most beautiful girl in the room for the night."

And it's no longer as simple as taking a trip to the tried-and-true formal dress departments at their local department stores. Members of Teen Vogue's "It Girls" focus group of fashionable readers say they're just as likely to scour vintage stores or create their own looks.

"They are ready to break the rules," says Gloria Baume, fashion director of Teen Vogue. "They will take only what they like from those stereotypical looks that have dominated the market since the 1950s and reinterpret them in their own magical way."

That approach also helps them avoid showing up as someone else's dress twin. Laura Hammer, a 17-year-old member of the Teen

"You won't be wearing a price tag on the night of prom, so spending more money won't make you look any better."

ELLEN KIM, STUDENT

Vogue group, will be wearing a 1960s shift purchased from an online vintage retailer.

"I chose vintage because I had the option of going through the racks at the same stores every teenage girl in my school will be picking through — you know the usual: Betsey Johnson, Nordstrom, Saks — and cross my fingers and hope that no one buys the same dress," Laura says. "But by going against the majority and buying vintage, I had the guarantee that I will show up in a one-of-a-kind design."

Cady Fontana, 17, is so concerned about being unique on her special night that she's making her own dress. The senior at Ithaca High School in Ithaca, N.Y., wants to duplicate the reaction she received for her self-made peach satin cocktail-length dress at last year's event.

"Prom is an awesome opportunity for me to show my peers what I can do, sewing-wise," she says.

Breaking with other traditions, such as donning a full-length gown, was also a popular and practical idea. Cristina Ruiz, 18, of Marietta, Ga., recalled her experience at the junior prom in a floor-length dress: "It was impossible to dance in, and I kept tripping."

Neev Zaiet, 16, poses in the Betsey Johnson dress she plans on wearing to prom.

Some even considered abandoning dresses altogether. "Girls have this misconception that if you are not wearing a big dress, you are underdressed," explains Christine Sirois, a 17-year-old from Toronto. "There is no reason why a young woman cannot wear a wonderfully tailored suit if she chooses."

Despite the level of expectation that teens have for their big night, many girls stressed that status is no longer about money.

"The perfect dress could be $1,000 or just out of a friend's closet," says Ellen Kim, a junior at Flintridge Preparatory Academy in a Los Angeles suburb. "Either way, you won't be wearing a price tag on the night of prom, so spending more money won't make you look any better."

And high prices don't always come with total contentment. Most girls said their look would be incomplete if a date's ensemble didn't gel with theirs.

Neev, the 16-year-old with everything but the prom date, will be channeling the 1980s in a blue strapless dress from Betsey Johnson. And to match her pink heels, her lucky man will have to wear a hot pink tie.

"I will find a hot pink tie, no matter what," Neev says. "My date will be ecstatic to know that he can stand out at prom and have a hot pink tie and a date in one of the most unique dresses." AMANDA KWAN (AP)

Skincare

Rebel Without a Tan

The name "YOU REBEL LITE" would seemingly indicate a new, thinner formula of Benefit's SPF 15 tinted moisturizer ($28, Sephora). That is not the case. Instead, "lite" is a nicer way of saying, "light," as in "unhealthy pallor," "sickly glow" or "downright cadaverous." We exaggerate, perhaps. We found the palest of the pale and slathered it on; it basically looks like one-shade or two-shades darker foundation. And it is TRULY for light skin — any darker than you-look-like-you've-seen-a-ghost white and it fades away. Of course, it also evens one's skin tone, moisturizes and protects from the sun, so stop whining. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Beauty

Wine(house) and Line

How did we review eye liner before Amy Winehouse ousted Cleopatra as queen of outré eyelids? The answer:

We don't remember.

STILA LIQUID EYE LINER ($16, Sephora) is quite watery, which makes it easy to do either a Winehouse or something normal — on the top lid with it. That wateriness means it mixes poorly with the moisture on the lower lid, producing a shaky, diluted line. But when you shake it, a little ball inside makes a satisfying knocking sound, which more than makes up for any flaws. H.J.M.

Love Lessons

"Daily Show" and "Colbert Report" producer BEN KARLIN was online Thursday to discuss his new book, "Things I've Learned From Women Who've Dumped Me."

If I buy 100 copies of your book, may I get free tickets to "The Daily Show" and/or "The Colbert Report"?

You know tickets are already free to those shows, right? I mean, sure, yes, of course, if you buy 100 books you will absolutely be eligible for free tickets to "The Daily Show" and "Colbert." That is a true statement.

Have you ever had anything bad happen to you after a woman told all of her friends she was sleeping with you? Why do they do that?

I don't know if I've ever had a woman tell all her friends she was sleeping with me. Usually, women tell all their friends they aren't sleeping with me, and it's the truth.

Was there an underlying theme in your contributors' essays? Some life lessons we can all take with us? The best theme I pulled out of the whole exercise was fairly hopeful, which is that none of the writers chose to be bitter or angry. Even the essay "A Grudge Can Be Art" is more whimsical than downright hostile. I think I came away marveling at how resilient most people are.

What is the worst dumping scenario you can envision? I'd hate to be the guy on the Jumbotron at the Dodgers game who proposes and is flatlined.

If you propose on the Jumbotron, you totally deserve to have her say "no."

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Now is the time for you to gather your forces and begin a campaign that can bring you a great deal of success. This venture depends upon timing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't become too demanding or possessive. Later on, you'll discover you have what it takes to avert a crisis.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't use up too much energy in the planning stages; have something left to apply to more active steps.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't take what others are saying about you too much to heart. Remember, you could be talking about them, if you wanted to.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're going to have to give some thought to your financial situation. Protect yourself on all sides, and don't let someone wear you down.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not likely to react well to opposition. Take care, however, that you do not blow things out of proportion and endanger future plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Others are likely to gravitate toward you all day long. You can afford to be more positive than ever before.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) There is only one thing that you absolutely must do before the day is out. You know what it is, so why do you keep trying to ignore it?

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Though you are usually bored by routine, you can find a great deal of solace in knowing just what you are to do and when.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may be confusing two issues at this time and overcomplicating things at home. Avoid bringing work home with you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may be in denial about certain things that have popped up in the last day or two that require attention. Don't ignore them for long.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Focus on the task at hand. Don't let yourself get distracted, especially when others come to you with petty problems that only seem urgent.

Fed Up With Metro Errors

I CAN'T EVEN begin to explain my irritation with Metro officials as it relates to the transit system ("New Metro Cars Suffer Radio Snag," March 9). They continue to make bad decisions that compromise riders' time and, now, possibly safety. To purchase new railcars with new radios that they know are not compatible with their old radio network is unconceivable. To have train operators rely on battery-operated handsets that are less reliable is completely unwise and unsafe.
